

The Carnival of the Animals

Ellie Phantazie Creation Wins First Prize

This publication likes to be able to bring you the most up-to-date fashion tips of the moment and the call from the wild is that Ellie Phantazie is the designer of the year. Her outfit was worn by none other than the infamous Polly Titian from The Loony Party . PT or Polly M Titian (PMT) as she is commonly known, was seen sporting one of Ellie Phantazie's creations during PMT's outing at The Carnival of the Animals. Naturally, the addition of an Indian Princess secured Polly's position as 1st prize winner in her category.

We here know all too well how our Polly is the master of disguise so it came as no surprise to find that when she cleverly re-invented herself in the same outfit but with the addition of 'a cardigan' and some followers disguised as 'children'. Her new team, The Carnival of the Animals, went on to win third prize in the twilight procession. Ingenious.

Ed's note: 'The Carnival of the Animals' seems to have been a recurrent theme throughout this prize giveaway. Was it a fix or a conflict of interests for Polly Titian? HUUUUUM . . .

HOLIDAY SNAPS

Back some time in July we promised you our Bumper Summer Special for the kiddies. Well, now that Easter is just round the corner, what better time to bring it out? Unfortunately, we had to spend so much money trailing our unsuspecting 'Happy Family' around the globe, we can only afford, thanks to our sponsor 'Open Mike' of 'The Prestigious Whine Bar', to bring you the full glossy photographs in this tabloid look newsletter.

We won't bore you with the interview with Barbie and Ken, Big Baby and Teenage Brat as they tended to speak 'in tongues' with Ken constantly repeating "Will you go to the ball?" or "I love you". He's obviously still smitten with his girl-friend of many years but despite their children and numerous wedding dresses that Barbie has bought, they have never tied the knot.

Our intrepid undercover reporter followed The Family around until he finally lost them some time in August so now we can bring you these personal holiday snaps.

Here are the folks before they set off. Happily for Ken, packing is never a problem because he doesn't own any clothes. The latest edition to the family is of course, Big Baby who seems to be a little undernourished we feel.

The mode of transport the family choose always provides them with the best view of the countryside.

The cast from The Wizard of Oz stop filming the remake to pose with Barbie, Ken and Kids.

Ken took time out to inspect his hedge fund.

Unfortunately, B&K were abducted by aliens before the end of the hols.

A Letter to . . . The benefits office

Dear Sir

RE: Summer holidays

As a single mum on benefits, do you realize how difficult it is to have two children with me 24 hours, 7 days a week? Their constant demand for

Tea-out has to be scaled down when money is tight love, attention, food and the constant noise and washing has sent my mental health into a spin and bankrupted me financially! Whose brilliant idea was it to introduce 'school holidays'? I blame the teachers myself. And what about some extra payments to help out with the additional lunches I now have to provide, not to mention the trips out, new school uniform and have you seen the price of school shoes? Thank goodness for Grannies and the generosity of friends coz the ex still hasn't given a penny and . . .

COME TO YOUR LOCAL IRONMONGERS BEFORE THE MAURADING HOARDS OF THE SUMMER THREATEN TO LOOT AND ROOT US TO THE SPOT

Whether you're after rooting powder for your green fingers, local blueberries to munch on your way to the chip shop or just plain old fashioned iron mongery with a hat on, come to BRADFORDS of Kghton.

The riots that brought the town to a standstill.

We also pride ourselves on being Polly Titian's Ironmonger of Choice and she can often be caught laughing at our window displays. She nearly bought a snow plough in July but we sold out .

MONKS TRAPPED INSIDE BOTTLES

'Open Mike' of the Prestigious Whine Bar in P, P* has an extraordinary and unusual method of drawing the crowds to his Bar. The fantastic range of wines and a full-line up of music over the next few months are not enough for this entrepreneur.

Open Mike can now show 'Monks Trapped In Bottles' as a curiosity for those folks who always demand more from their drinking hole. He says "The bottle may look cloudy but that's the wheat in it," (apparently the monks can be seen turning the wheat into a nutritious foodstuff).

We bought a bottle and after several glasses of drink, we totally agreed that we really could see monks trapped inside bottles! Thank you Open Mike.

Town Criers Line Up To Be Snapped With Polly Titian

The Annual 'Who Shouts Louder Than Polly Titian' Competition was again held in K, P* and 'Team Town Criers' as per usual, walked off with first prize.

The queue gets longer as traffic is stopped.

However, the photographs took hours as everyone wanted to be seen with PMT.

Ed Space

New term, new challenges eh, readers? We have decided to publish 'The Word on the Street' as a Sister paper to its Big Brother, 'The Muse of the World' which some of you may have already seen. However, we would like to draw your attention to the blog www.museoftheworld2.wordpress.com which is yet another of our publishing outlets. We are an international and universal media group as you can see. We were going to bring out 'Fat Cow Diet and Gym Class Directory' but seeing as we do neither, there was some legal wrangling which we chose to ignore so might bring it out anyway.

We hope you like our soft and fluffy photo story look format style tabloid broadsheet newsletter and that you have noticed we have been able to also incorporate some advertisements which proves that our advertising team did pop out of the pub to put a bit of copy our way but have swiftly popped back in again.

Please continue to send in all your letters and articles—we'd be lost without them! (Is this a message to the staff? -Sub Ed)

POLLY TITIAN STANDS AGAINST MAYOR

Back in July, The Muse of the World broke the story that Polly Titian's May 2012 election campaign was based on the 'Say No' principle with her slogan being,

DON'T VOTE FOR POLLY TITIAN.
IT ONLY ENCOURAGES HER.

However, as this exclusive undercover secret picture shows, Polly is clearly standing against the Mayor!

We're not entirely sure that the Mayor saw through Polly's clever disguise although knowing our PMT as we do and having bugged her since our secret reporter last secretly interviewed her, we can tell you she may know she carries the M.A.D. Jean but is still telling High Office Officials, "I'm LOONY".

Polly likes to keep her ears open and her mouth shut when it comes to politics. How long this will last is anyone's guess.

Local councillors and members of the dominoes team may soon start quaking in their flip flops when they hear that Polly Titian is actually quite a political animal and has the heart of her community at the heart of her manifesto which is a heartfelt gesture of love and is heartening to hear.

The Muse of the World is committed to leaking this manifesto as soon as PMT starts writing it but we have heard there is talk of an ice-cream skating rink for the kids to get messy in and the possibility of stair lifts for some of the more challenging hills in her town. Other leaks have included potatoes but they're all bubbling over in the pot of soup that is called Polly's mind.
